Among the major professions, certified public accountancy has the most severe underrepresentation of African Americans: less than 1 percent of CPAs are black. Theresa Hammond explores the history behind this statistic and chronicles the courage and determination of African Americans who sought to enter the field. In the process, she expands our understanding of the links between race, education, and economics. Drawing on interviews with pioneering black CPAs, among other sources, Hammond sets the stories of black CPAs against the backdrop of the rise of accountancy as a profession, the particular challenges that African Americans trying to enter the field faced, and the strategies that enabled some blacks to become CPAs. Prior to the 1960s, few white-owned accounting firms employed African Americans. Only through nationwide networks established by the first black CPAs did more African Americans gain the requisite professional experience. The civil rights era saw some progress in integrating the field, and black colleges responded by expanding their programs in business and accounting. In the 1980s, however, the backlash against affirmative action heralded the decline of African American participation in accountancy and paved the way for the astonishing lack of diversity that characterizes the field today.

Overview: The Haddock text features the successful author team Price et al. The author team based A Contemporary Approach on the solid foundation of the Price 14e textbook; however, in Haddock, the approach has been modified to fit the needs of a growing number of College Accounting instructors who teach the course without covering special journals. These instructors feel that special journals are an unnecessarily complicated subject for such a basic course. By eliminating special journal coverage, professors are free to focus on recording to the general journal and posting to the general ledger - the basic bookkeeping functions that are so important to accountants in the real world. Competing books have placed special journals in an appendix (Slater) or tried to separate special journal coverage from general journal coverage but retain both (McQuaig). Haddock is the only text on the market that eliminates special journal coverage completely (why make students pay for material they will not learn in the course?). With Haddock on the roster, instructor's have a choice between a traditional approach that fully integrates special journals into the text in a succinct and logical way (Price 14e) or a contemporary approach that focuses on the basics and is more in keeping with where the course is headed in the future (Haddock 3e).

Supersedes SOP 06-1, Reporting Pursuant to the Global Investment Performance Standards This Statement of Position (SOP) has been issued to guide practitioners with engagements to examine and report on aspects of an investment firm's compliance with the Global Investment Performance Standards (GIPS® standards). In addition, this SOP provides guidance on engagements to examine and report on the performance results of specific composites in conformity with applicable guidance. Presentation of an investment firm's past performance can be a powerful tool for attracting new clients. These presentations have been the focus for the past several years due to market forces, competition, and consolidation. To promote fair representation and greater comparability in performance presentations, CFA Institute created the GIPS standards. Many investment firms' claim of compliance with these standards has been regarded as providing a competitive advantage. This SOP updates SOP 06-1, Reporting Pursuant to the Global Investment Performance Standards, for the most recent changes to the GIPS standards.
